Election Summary

In a show of Republican strength in Florida, state Senate incumbent Corey Simon on Tuesday handily defeated Democratic challenger Daryl Parks in what was considered the only competitive state Senate race and the GOP maintained supermajorities in both legislative chambers.

Democrats failed to topple Republicans' supermajority in the Florida House, an effort that would have required picking up a net of five seats. Democrats had hoped to edge into the GOP supermajority in the Legislature and perhaps pick up one of the many seats they'd targeted for trying to flip. It appears likely that Democrats will have no net gain. They lost a seat that had been flipped blue last cycle by Tom Keen. Republican Erika Booth has turned the tables on Democratic Rep. Tom Keen, who flipped a formerly Republican seat when he narrowly defeated Booth in a special election in January.

In a nail-biting race for Florida House District 45, Democrat Leonard Spencer early Wednesday held a narrow lead over Republican incumbent Rep. Carolina Amesty, with a margin of just 217 votes out of 90,237 cast.

In the state House District 93 race, Democratic incumbent Rep. Katherine Waldron and challenger Anne Gerwig, the former Mayor of Wellington, were locked in counting of ballots in one of the tightest races in the state. Republican Anne Gerwig is currently ahead 50.2% to 49.7%.

Florida voters also re-elected Republican U.S. Sen. Rick Scott and aligned with GOP Gov. Ron DeSantis on two high-profile constitutional amendment proposals.

We have highlighted closely watched and contested races throughout Florida, showcasing pivotal election outcomes that underscore these trends.
